

A look at the capital Havana through the eyes of a tourist. Many thanks to my eldest sister and my niece for taking these photos on their trip.

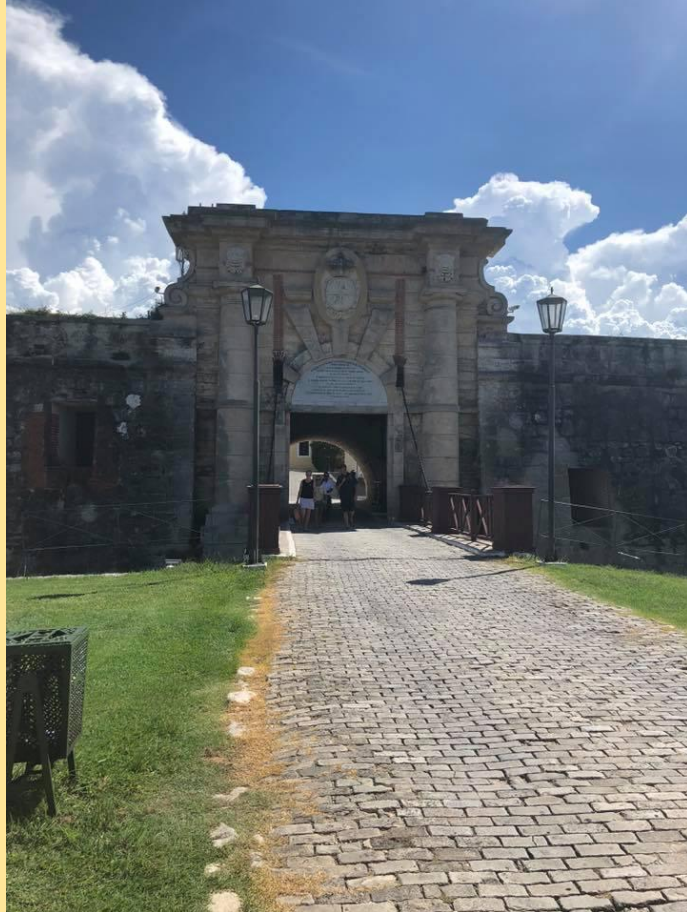

CUBA

The Spanish built a fort to protect the city

Sugarcane and slavery increased their wealth

The Spanish brought their architecture

Traditional Castilian Spanish Designs

Modern day architecture still reminds the people of the heroes of the revolution

Christianity is now allowed but was once banned during the Communist Revolution

Modern day Havana due to fewer sanctions

Typical Havana infrastructure today

Still so much remains out of date

THE END

↖ Note the cruise ship docked in the port

